

May 14, 1998

To Whom It May Concern :

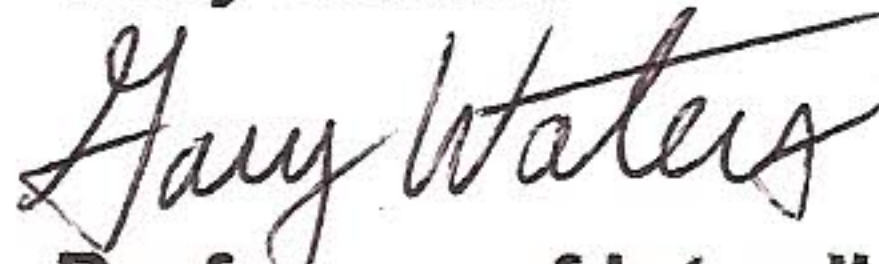

This is a reference letter for Scott McIlquham.

It was my pleasure to have Scott in two one-semester courses that I taught at our College in the Liberal Arts and Sciences area, over the past two years. Out of about a hundred students enrolled in each of these courses, Scott came out at the top in both. Clearly he was a superior student.

However, high academic achievement is not the only indicator that is important in careers. Mr. McIlquham also possesses the following positive attributes: excellent communications skills ( written and verbal ); very high problem-solving ability; strong interpersonal skills ( ability to work co-operatively with other people ); and high achievement in his program trade area ( machine tools ).

Adding to the above that Mr. McIlquham has an outgoing, friendly personality leads me to give him the highest possible recommendation. I have no doubt whatsoever that any organization that takes on Mr. McIlquham will be enriching themselves.

Gary Waters

Professor of Interdisciplinary Studies
George Brown College
Toronto
ph: (416)- 415- 2900 ext. 6414